The history of the group and the methodology of its call

The Proclaimers of the Truth is a group calling humanity once again to the Ultimate Truth that there is no deity except Allah (swt) and to truly understand the meaning of the Oneness of Allah (Tawhid) as made very clear in the Quran and in the Sunnah of His Messenger (pbuh).

The group was first formed in 1973, and ever since then, it fully knew and understood the Truth from the Quran. It aimed to receive the Quran the same way the first generation did, which meant implementing the-receive-to-put-into-action method and not approaching the Quran merely for academic discussion and enjoyment. Thus, the group was brought up by the Quran and strove to patiently fulfill what the Quran enjoined upon them. From the very beginning of its formation, the group has been adhering to the Sunnah of the Messenger for guidance on how to establish a constructive movement and raise, nurture and purify its members.

The Proclaimers of the Truth are certain that mankind today is living in a period that is similar in many aspects to the jahili periods prevalent before the arrival of any of the Messengers of Allah.

"Time has turned around and has become like the days when Allah first sent the Messenger Muhammad (pbuh) to all of mankind to convey the Message that 'there is no deity but Allah.' That was when humanity had deviated from exclusively worshiping Allah to polytheism and even atheism, and Satan had taken them far astray. Therefore, humanity is now in a great need for the real Truth, needing a completely new invitation to Islam. Unfortunately, the Muslim Nation which could guide humanity does not exist anymore as it has vanished when this nation deviated from the way of Allah, neglecting His Book, adopting deities beside Allah, by changing the canonical laws of Islam and adopting man-made laws whereby what was decreed to be lawful from Allah (swt) was made forbidden, and what was made forbidden by Allah, was made lawful."

Determined to follow in the footsteps of the Messenger (pbuh), the Proclaimers of the Truth became certain that nurturing the members of this group initially in a secretive movement and purifying their hearts was necessary as a starting point for the commencement of a Muslim movement. Such approach enabled them to gain a broader and deeper understanding of the Truth, having believed in it without feeling confused or distracted. Over time, they grew intellectually, and thus became capable of presenting the world the Truth and remain steadfast. The group announced itself to the world in order to be among those who represent this Message in society by upholding and applying what it prescribes, as well as referring to it for guidance when dealing with all issues and people.

Moreover, the Proclaimers of the Truth is a group that was formed independently from the society that it lives in, where members of the group stand together in solidarity and are loyal to one another. As mentioned before, its sole goal is to call people – all people – to truly understand the meaning of the Oneness of Allah (Tawhid) and to enforce His Sharia not only in the societies that we live in but all around the world so that there would be no conflict and all worship is devoted to Allah alone. In this regard, the group has been completely and faithfully following the example of the first Muslim group, which was created by the Messenger of Allah (sas) himself. Our group has its own movement whose methodology takes into consideration the huge disparity between the first Muslim group, given the circumstances and the way it was established, and subsequent Muslim groups in history. Indeed, Muslim groups who come later on need to seek guidance on how to start a movement, by looking into the Islamic and practical history of that first Muslim group.

Throughout history, there were many instances where countless Messengers and their followers would call upon the people to worship Allah alone, and this call will continue until the Day of Judgment. The Divine Message will continuously inform people about Allah (swt) and call them to follow His religion, methods, and laws, as it is really from His limitless Mercy on people that He enjoins them to do so, for He ultimately wants to save them from the misery of this world and from the punishment in the hereafter.

As previously stated, the methodology of the Proclaimers of the Truth is to call people to Allah and believe in Him alone, and to state the Truth clearly while taking into consideration the reality of people's lives. Under no circumstances should a member of the group get into fights or confrontations. The calm and peaceful proclamation was the beginning of every call to Islam that occurred in history. The first and foremost reason for this methodology is that people need to be presented with the facts clearly, so that they may understand the true essence of this message without falling victim to the enemies of Islam. Throughout the ages, these enemies have been propagating lies and falsehood, alleging that those who confront people with this Message do so for the sake of personal power or purely out of desire to cause conflict. People should be given a chance to see with their own eyes how clear the Truth is and that Muslim advocates strive with good intent and determination to walk down the path leading to Allah (swt). The callers to Islam should be completely determined in their mission, and show no weakness, hesitance, or embarrassment. They should be steadfast until Allah brings about His decree and reveals the Truth and judges between them and the people. Without a doubt, Allah (swt) is ultimately the best judge and the best of those Who give decision.

The group was initially established and started its call in Egypt. Over time, it was by the will of Allah that more and more people who strongly believed in this Truth would join and spread the message to many other countries. The group's most important goal during its secret phase was to lay the foundation of its call by recruiting select people in order to raise and educate each member individually. While this course of action brings about very slow change, it allows the new member, as well as his family and children, the opportunity to receive special attention from the group, thereby receiving the right upbringing. Through this method, not only are individuals spiritually, intellectually, and morally nourished, but also are kindly but firmly pushed to willingly devote themselves to Allah in total worship and really understand what it takes to be part of an Islamic movement which must be deeply informed about the reality of the big conflict and battle between the Truth and falsehood. Indeed this the methodology for ultimately establishing a Muslim society, and it is truly a blessing from Allah (swt) that we are absolutely certain that such methodology is universally applicable during every period of human existence. You can find a detailed description of our call and methodology in the Shuruh – Commentaries and Explanations of Sayyid Qutub's Milestones, as well as many articles, videos, and recordings on our website and from other social media platforms.
